Margarite Helena Zoeteweij-Turhan received her education from Utrecht University (MA Dutch and International Law, 2005), Exeter University (LLM in European Union Law, 2007) and Lucerne University (PhD in European Union Law, 2010), and has taught courses in EU Law, European Human Rights Law and WTO Law at two Universities in Istanbul, starting in 2010. She presently works at the Chair for Public International Law at Ozyegin University Faculty of Law (Istanbul) and her research and publications focus on issues of EU law, human rights and immigration law.