

Enrico Biale is Research Fellow at the University of Piemonte Orientale. His main research interests are in the normative theory of democracy and in the theory of justice in labour market. Among his most recent publications: “A multidimensional Account of Democratic Legitimation: How to Make Robust Decision in a Non-Idealized Deliberative Context” (with Federica Liveriero), Critical Review of International Social and Political Philosophy, forthcoming; “Ragioni partigiane e agency democratica”, Etica & Politica / Ethics and Politics, 2016, “Urban Space and Respect for Persons: Making sense of Pluralism in Cities”, in S. Moroni e D. Weberman (eds), Space and Pluralism, CEU Press 2016; “Democratic Control and Contestation”, Philosophy and Public Issues, 2015.

Francesco Chiesa is Post-Doctoral Research Fellow in political philosophy at the University of Pavia. He was Teaching Assistant at the University of Milano and at the University of South Wales where he undertook his PhD. His research focuses on the ideas of respect, self-respect, implicit bias and responsibility in contemporary moral and political philosophy. He has published on the issue of allocation of space to Traveller populations in Europe and has three forthcoming pieces in Ethics and Social Welfare, Philosophical Papers and Notizie di Politeia.

Chiara Destri is PhD student in Political Studies at the University of Milan and she works on the legitimate authority of democracy and citizens’ political obligation. She has studied at the École des hautes études en sciences sociales, based in Paris, in 2013, and at the University of Arizona (Tucson, USA) in 2015. Her main research interests include normative theories of democracy, deliberative and epistemic democracy, political obligation and political legitimacy.

Dario Malinconico is currently a PhD student in Political Philosophy at the University of Eastern Piedmont. He studied theoretical philosophy at the University of Naples and he was visiting scholar at Université Pantheon-Sorbonne and at the École des hautes études en sciences sociales (EHESS). He is currently professor of history and philosophy in secondary school. In 2015, he won the literary prize “Cesare Pavese” (young section). His research interests are: radical democracy (Lefort), ideology (Post-marxism), biopolitics (Foucault). Publications: The Concept of Philosophical Archaeology in Kant and Foucault (Metalogicon, 2012); L'enigma kantiano. Critica e illuminismo in Michel Foucault (Atti dell'Accademia di Scienze Umane e Politiche, 2015); Conflitto e istituzione simbolica in Claude Lefort (in L'epoca dei populismi, Mimesis, 2015); Lefort filosofo del potere (in Storia del pensiero politico, il Mulino, 2016/2).