

Rainer Bauböck is professor of Social and Political Theory at the Department of Political and Social Sciences of the European University Institute. His research interests are in normative political theory and comparative research on democratic citizenship, European integration, migration, nationalism and minority rights. Together with Jo Shaw (University of Edinburgh) and Maarten Vink (University of Maastricht), he coordinates Globalcit, an online observatory on citizenship and voting rights

Antonio Floridia, graduated in philosophy, has worked for a long time in an institute of economic and social research, dealing with public policy analysis, political sociology and electoral studies. Since 2005 he has directed the Sector 'Policies for Citizen Participation' of Tuscany Region. He has had teaching assignments at the University of Florence, and was President (2014-2017) of the Italian Society of Electoral Studies. He has published numerous essays and books on policy analysis, electoral studies, participatory and deliberative democracy. Among his most recent publications, see the volume From Participation to Deliberation: A Critical Genealogy of Deliberative Democracy (2017) (Italian edition, Un'idea deliberativa della democrazia. Genealogia e principi, 2017)

Federica Liveriero is currently a Junior Research Fellow in Political Philosophy at the Department of Humanities of the University of Piemonte Orientale "Amedeo Avogadro", Vercelli. Her main areas of interest are normative theories of justification and public reason; legitimacy of political authority and procedural justice; metaethics and political accommodation of diversity and disagreement. Among her recent publications: "Epistemic dimension of reasonableness”, Philosophy and Social Criticism; “Proceduralism and the epistemic dilemma of the Supreme Courts”, Social Epistemology (with D. Santoro); “A multidimensional account of democratic legitimacy: How to make robust decisions in a non-idealized deliberative context”, Critical Review of International Social and Political Philosophy (with E. Biale).

Beatrice Magni was born in 1970, she holds a BA degree in Political Sciences from the University of Milan, an MPhil in Political Philosophy from the Ehes (École des Hautes Études en Sciences Sociales) of Paris, and a PhD in Political Studies from the University of Paris VII, Paris. She is Assistant Professor since 2009 at the University of Milan, where she teaches Political Philosophy and Bioethics. Her research interests are in political theory, theories of justice and injustice, political realism and compromise. Among her publications: “New wine in old bottles: The kind of political philosophy we need”, Phenomenology and Mind (2017), Machiavelli. Sette saggi di teoria politica (2017), Solidarietà. Storia di un’idea (2012), Conflitto e libertà. Saggio su Machiavelli (2012).