

Enrico Biale is Assistant Professor in Political Philosophy at the Department of Humanities of the University of Piemonte Orientale where he teaches Political and Social Philosophy. His main areas of interests are normative democratic theory and deliberative democracy, normative theories of democratic citizenship, theories of social justice and progressive politics. He has published extensively on democratic boundaries, normative theories of political parties, and he is currently writing a monograph on the boundaries of democratic citizenship. His work has appeared in Political Theory, Critical Review of International Social and Political Philosophy, Res Publica.

Antonio Campati is researcher at Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore (Milan). His research interests mainly focus on the transformations of political representation, the role of elites and the theories of democracy. On these issues, he has written essays published in journals and collective volumes. He is the author of I migliori al potere. La qualità nella rappresentanza politica, Rubbettino, 2016.

James Cartlidge is a late-stage PhD candidate at the Central European University (Budapest/Vienna). His thesis interprets Martin Heidegger's philosophy as philosophical anthropology and critically develops its account of 'revelatory moods'. He is currently working as a visiting lecturer at Eötvös Loránd University (Budapest), teaching courses on Heidegger and Poststructuralist philosophy.

Matilde Ceron is a PhD candidate in Political Studies at the University of Milan. She obtained a MSc in Economics and Social Sciences from Bocconi University and a MA Public Policy Analysis from the College of Europe. Previously she worked within the policy field, in a think tank, policy consulting and in the European public sector. Her research interests are EU policies and specifically economic governance and budgetary choices.

Francesca Cerutti is a Post-doc fellow at the University of Milan. She got her PhD in the framework of the NASP-WEST Graduate School in Social and Political Science (University of Milan). Since 2013 she has worked as teaching assistant and master students' tutor in the framework of the Programmes of "International Relations" (M.A.) and "International Studies and European Institutions" (B.A.). In 2017, she has served as full time consultant at the premises of the World Health Organization (WHO) within the Health and Security Interface Unit (World Health Emergency Department). Before joining the WHO, she was visiting fellow at The Graduate Institute in Geneva (Programme for the Study of International Governance) in 2016 and visiting scholar at Duke University in 2015. She herself holds a MSc in International Relations and a BA in International Studies both honoured cum laude. Prior to her doctoral studies, she has been working at the premises of the BSL4 Laboratory of Luigi Sacco University Hospital (Milan) for several years, in the framework of the CBRN Center of Excellence Initiatives and NATO Science for Peace and Security Projects both home-based and in South East Asia.

Francesco Gaudiosi is PhD Candidate in International Law at the Department of Political Science Jean Monnet, University of Campania Luigi Vanvitelli. He is member of the editorial board of the SIOI Observatory for the role of international and supranational, universal, and regional organizations for the interest themes of the Italian foreign policy. He is also Director of Centro Studi Internazionali (CSI). His main areas of research include international environmental law and international economic law.

Sebastiano Maffettone is a political philosopher, professor at LUISS University, and director of Ethos, an observatory on public ethics based at Luiss Business School. He had been visiting professor at Harvard, Columbia, Tufts, Boston College, University of Pennsylvania, New Delhi, LSE, Sciences-Po.

He published 30 books and many articles on domestic and global justice, environmental justice, comparative political philosophy. Among his most recent publications Marx nel XXI secolo (Luiss University Press, 2018), Politica. Idee per un mondo che cambia (Mondadori Education, 2019) e Il quarto shock. Come il virus ha cambiato il mondo (Luiss University Press, 2020).

Noemi Magnani holds a BA in Philosophy from the University of Bologna and an MA, MPhilStud and PhD in Philosophy from Birkbeck, University of London. She works as an Associate Tutor at Birkbeck and Graduate Teaching Assistant at King's College London. Her research focuses on contemporary political philosophy and ethics, in particular the relationship between liberalism, autonomy, and the rights of vulnerable individuals.

Catherine Nolan received her PhD in philosophy from the State University of New York, and she currently teaches at the University of Dallas' Rome Campus in Marino (RM) Italy. Her research is in metaphysics and ethics, particularly where ancient and medieval authors can be used to shed light on contemporary problems.

Carlo Maria Palermo holds a degree in International Studies and European Institutions. He is a Member of the Scientific Committee CESPI (Sesto S.G). His research interest focus on the domain of European Politics and International Relations.

Annachiara Rotondo is Postdoctoral Research Fellow in international law at the Department of Political Science Jean Monnet, University of Campania Luigi Vanvitelli. She is in the editorial board of Tecnologie e Diritto. Among her main area of interest there is the application of International law to cyber activities.

Roberta Sala is Full Professor, Political Philosophy and Public Ethics, Faculty of Philosophy, University Vita-Salute San Raffaele, Milan, Italy

Giovanni Salpietro holds a Master in Governments, Public Policies and European Public Administration from the University of Pavia. He works as a consultant for the local public sector in the field of taxation. His interests are EU economic policies and the history of the European integration process.

Virginia Sanchini is Assistant Professor, Political Philosophy and Public Bioethics, Department of Oncology and Hemato-Oncology, University of Milan, Italy; Visiting Research Fellow and Master of Bioethics Mentor, Centre for Biomedical Ethics and Law, KU Leuven, Leuven, Belgium.

Gloria Zuccarelli is a PhD candidate in Political Studies (Political Theory path) at Nasp (Network for the Advancement of Social and Political Studies), University of Milan. She is currently working on her doctoral thesis on asylum-seeking women and injustice. Her research interests include immigration, refugee studies, gender studies, intersectionality and injustice.