

Enrico Biale is Assistant Professor in Political Philosophy at the Department of Humanities of the University of Piemonte Orientale where he teaches Political and Social Philosophy. His main areas of interest are normative democratic theory and deliberative democracy, normative theories of democratic citizenship, theories of social justice, and progressive politics. He has published extensively on democratic boundaries and normative theories of political parties. His work has appeared in Contemporary Political Theory, Political Theory, Critical Review of International Social and Political Philosophy, Res Publica.

Paolo Gerbaudo is a sociologist at King's College London and the author of The Great Recoil: Politics after Populism and Pandemic (Verso 2021).

Federica Liveriero is Assistant professor (Rtd-B) in Political Philosophy at the Department of Political and Social Sciences of the University of Pavia. She received her Ph.D. in Political Theory from LUISS University in 2013. She has held visiting positions at Boston College (2011-2012; 2014); at the University of California, San Diego (2012) and at the University of Massachusetts, Lowell (2017). Liveriero main areas of interest are normative theories of justification and public reason; democratic theory; social epistemology and meta-ethics. Recent publications have appeared in Critical Review of International Social and Political Philosophy, Ethical Theory and Moral Practice, Philosophy and Social Criticism, Social Epistemology, The Journal of Ethics. She published a monograph in Italian, Decisioni pubbliche e disaccordo (LUISS University Press, 2017) and co-edited a volume, Democracy and Diversity (Routledge, 2018). Her new book, Relational Liberalism. Democratic Co-Authorship in a Pluralistic World, is forthcoming for Springer Nature.

Federica Merenda is a Post-Doc Researcher in Political Philosophy at Scuola Superiore Sant'Anna. Her research interests span across Arendt and Feminist Studies and the challenges posed by Artificial Intelligence technologies to Political Action and to Women's Rights. She is currently working on a book on the substitution of human beings with Artificial Intelligence systems in Migration Governance based on Arendt's Theory of Political Judgement. Recent publications include: "Reading Arendt to Rethink Truth, Science and Politics in the Era of Fake News" (in S. Giusti, E. Piras eds, Democracy and Fake News. Information Manipulation and Post-Truth Politics, Routledge, 2021); "For Love of the World. Elena Pulcini, una filosofa della cura nell'era della crisi ecologica", "Germogli. Pratiche ecofemministe", Donna Woman Femme - DWF (2021); "Robot Care Ethics Between Autonomy and Vulnerability: Coupling Principles and Practices in Autonomous Systems for Care" (co-authored with A. Pirni, M. Balistreri, S. Umbrello, M. Capasso, in Frontiers in Robotics and AI, (2021); Value Sensitive Design to Achieve the UN SDGs with AI: A Case of Elderly Care Robots (co-authored with Steven Umbrello, Marianna Capasso, Maurizio Balistreri, Alberto Pirni, in Minds and Machines, Springer, 2021); "Piccolo vocabolario filosofico per il post-pandemia. Dialogo con Elena Pulcini" (in M. Malvicini, T. Portaluri, A. Martinengo eds, Le parole della crisi, le politiche dopo la pandemia. Guida non emergenziale al post-Covid-19, Editoriale Scientifica, 2020); "Autonomous Weapons Systems (AWS): "The Ethical and Legal Challenges of Having Robots Apply International Humanitarian Law" (Ragion Pratica, 1, 2020).

Francesca Miccoli is a PhD candidate in Political Studies at the Network for the Advancement of Social and Political Studies (NASP) of the University of Milan. She is currently working at her doctoral dissertation on the legal recognition of polyamorous families from a liberal perspective. Her research interests include political philosophy, philosophy of law, gender and sexuality studies, feminism, and bioethics. Her work has recently appeared in Whatever. A Transdisciplinary Journal of Queer Theories and Studies.

Valentina Moro, during her PhD program in Philosophy, was visiting student at Brown University both in 2016 and in 2017. She obtained her PhD degree at the University of Padua in 2018. She held postdoctoral positions at the Istituto italiano per gli studi filosofici in Naples (2019) and at the Center for Advanced Studies of Southeastern Europe in Rijeka (2020). Between 2020 and 2021 she had a contract as assegnista di ricerca at the University of Verona. Afterwards, she has obtained a Marie Skłodowska-Curie Global Fellowship that will last until the end of 2024. Her beneficiary institution is the University of Verona and her host institution is DePaul University in Chicago, where she is currently located. In Verona, she is affiliated with the “Hannah Arendt” Center for Political Studies. Her current research project, entitled Choreographies of Vulnerability: Towards a New Public Ethics of Care is multi-disciplinary, as it intersects the fields of political philosophy, feminist theories, and classics (with focus on Sophocles’ theatre, which was at the core of her PhD dissertation). She is a member of the editorial board of the scientific journal Materiali foucaultiani. Among her most recent publications: “A Theatre of Vulnerability: Lamentation as a Gendered Self-Narration in Sophocles’ Antigone”, in The Gendered I in Ancient Literature (De Gruyter, 2022); with M. Cano Abadia, S. Bojanic (guest eds), “Feminist Responses to Populist Politics”, The European Journal of English Studies (2021); “Sailing Together. The Agonistic Construction of Sisterhood in the Language of Sophocles’ Antigone”, Ramus, 2021; “‘Un uomo dai molti inganni’ (Filottete, v. 1135): il significato dell’apatē nel linguaggio politico tra Gorgia e Sofocle”, Lessico di Etica pubblica (2021); “La politicità del linguaggio tragico: prospettive di genere”, Filosofia politica (2020); “Il femminile tragico e il teatro della parola. La responsabilità e il giudizio nelle Trachinie di Sofocle”, Genesis (2019).

Marco Santambrogio taught Philosophy of Language at several universities and, most recently, at Università San Raffaele in Milan. He is a founding member of the European Society for Analytic Philosophy (ESAP) and the Società Italiana di Filosofia Analitica (SIFA). Some of his works have appeared in The Journal of Philosophy, Nous, Synthese, Dialectica. He recently published Il complotto contro il merito (Laterza, 2021).

Alessandro Volpe is a Postdoctoral Researcher in the Faculty of Philosophy at Vita-Salute San Raffaele University, Milan. He is a member of the International Research Centre for European Culture and Politics (IRCECP). His research focuses on contemporary critical theory, the idea of solidarity, and the philosophy of Europe. He currently teaches Ethics at Free University Institute “Carlo Cattaneo” in Castellanza (Varese, Italy). He is also a teaching assistant in Moral Philosophy at the Department of Political and Social Science of the University of Milan. He was a research fellow at Fondazione Fratelli Confalonieri (Milan) and visiting doctoral fellow in the Cluster of Excellence “The Formation of Normative Orders” at J.W. Goethe-Universität in Frankfurt am Main. Among his publication are Jürgen Habermas on European Solidarity (ECPR Press, forthcoming), Le ragioni dell'Europa: Habermas e il progetto d'integrazione tra etica e politica (Mimesis 2021), and Hegel e l'identità politica europea (“Giornale Critico di Storia delle Idee”, 2017). He edited the Italian edition of Rainer Forst's Normatività e potere. Per l'analisi degli ordini sociali della giustificazione (Mimesis 2021). He is the editor of the academic blog www.reasonsforeurope.eu.