

Alexandar Damjanovski is a PhD Candidate at the School of International Studies of the University of Trento. His doctoral research applies Game Theory to European defence cooperation. He holds an MA in International Relations and European Studies and a BA in International Studies (University of Florence), and he has a Master in Diplomatic Studies from the Italian Society for International Organisation (Rome). He has interned at the Communication Service of the European University Institute and worked as a junior researcher in the OSCE project “Confidence-Building Measures to Reduce the Risks of Conflict Stemming from the Use of ICT”. Furthermore, he has worked as BlueBook trainee at the European Commission at the DG Defence Industry and Space. Currently, he is a Lecturer in Geopolitics to undergraduate students at the Unicollage Scuola Superiore Mediatori Linguistici, Florence.

Loretta Dell’Aguzzo is Adjunct Professor of Strategic Geopolitics at Unicollage - Scuola Superiore per Mediatori Linguistici of Florence. Her research focuses on comparative authoritarianism, democratization and state formation with a regional focus on post-communist and MENA countries. Among her publications are Conflitti separatisti. Caucaso meridionale, Europa orientale e Balcani (Carocci, 2020) and the edited volume The ‘state’ of pivot states in south-eastern Mediterranean: Turkey, Egypt, Israel, and Tunisia after the Arab Spring (Stranieri University Press, 2016).

Emidio Diodato is Full Professor of International Politics and Political Science in the Department of International Human and Social Sciences at the University for Foreigners of Perugia, Italy. His research focuses on geopolitics, foreign policy and international relations theory. Among his publications is Berlusconi. The Diplomat (Palgrave MacMillan, 2019).

Maurizio Ferrera is Professor of Political Science at the University of Milan. He has been Visiting Professor at several universities, including UC Berkeley, London School of Economics, Science PO (Paris). His work has mainly focused on social welfare and European integration. His latest books are La verità al potere (with Franca D'Agostini, Einaudi, 2019), La Società del Quinto Stato (2019, Laterza) and Rotta di Collisione: Euro versus Welfare (Laterza, 2017). He is currently completing the volume Politics and Social Visions for Oxford University Press (2023). He has been a columnist for “Corriere della Sera” since 2003. In 2013 Ferrera won an ERC Advanced Grant (RESceU: www.resceu.eu). In 2019 he won an ERC Synergy Grant (SOLID: www.solid.eu). In 2021 he was awarded the Mattei Dogan Prize for “high achievement in political science” by the International Political Science Association.

Elena Icardi is a PhD Candidate in Political Studies at the Network for the Advancement of Social and Political Studies (NASP) of the University of Milan (Political Theory curriculum). She is currently working on her doctoral thesis on contemporary republicanism and distributive justice. She spent a period abroad at the Ethics Institute of Utrecht University. Her research interests mostly focus on Neo-republicanism, Rousseau's political thought, freedom as non-domination, equality, and democratic participation.

Costanza Marcellino is a PhD Candidate in Politics at LUISS Guido Carli University. She holds a Double Research Master in European Studies from Maastricht and Cologne Universities and a BA in Politics and Economics from the University of Milan. Her research interests include public opinion, European identity, political participation and voting behaviour.

Kalypso Nicolaïdis is professorial Chair of Global Affairs at the EUI School of Transnational Governance in Florence, where she convenes the EUI Democracy Forum. She is currently on leave from the University of Oxford and was professor at Harvard University's Kennedy School of Government and at ENA. She has worked with numerous EU institutions, including as a member of the European Council's reflection group on the future of Europe chaired by Felipe González (2008-10). Her research revolves around internal and external aspects of European integration as well as global affairs, theaters of recognition, democratic theory, transnational legal empathy and social solidarity, global governance and international trade, sustainable integration, post-colonialism, myth and politics and the import of new technologies on international relations. Her last books are: A Citizen's Guide to the Rule of Law - Why We Need to Fight for the Most Precious Human Inventions of All Time (with Adis Merdzanovic, 2021) and Exodus, Reckoning, Sacrifice: Three Meanings of Brexit (2019). Her website: <http://kalypsonicolaidis.com/>.

Jonathan White is Professor of Politics at the London School of Economics. His most recent book is Politics of Last Resort: Governing by Emergency in the European Union (Oxford University Press, 2019); previous titles include The Meaning of Partisanship (with Lea Ypi, Oxford University Press, 2016), and Political Allegiance after European Integration (Palgrave Macmillan, 2011). He was awarded the 2017 British Academy Brian Barry Prize for Excellence in Political Science.

