

Francesca Guma holds a PhD in Philosophy and a second Master's degree in Psychology. She teaches Philosophy within the Foundation Year program at the University of Pavia and collaborates on research and teaching activities at several Italian universities, including the Vita-Salute San Raffaele University in Milan. She also conducts teaching and training in healthcare, social, and organizational sectors. A psychologist and Freudian psychoanalyst, she maintains a clinical practice in Pavia and Milan. Since 2024, she has been pursuing her specialization in psychotherapy at the School of Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy (SPP) in Milan. Her research interests lie at the intersection of moral philosophy, psychoanalysis, and applied ethics, with a particular focus on the concept of well-being, psychic determinism, and free will. She is the author of numerous essays and the monograph Benessere. Una questione morale (Le Monnier, 2020).