

Kim Leontiev is a PhD candidate in Philosophy at University College London (UCL) and accredited legal practitioner in Australia. His research interests lie in legal and political philosophy with regard to questions of state and individual sovereignty, legitimacy and justifications of human rights – especially freedoms of religion and conscience.