

Giacomo Marossi received his PhD in political philosophy from the University of Piemonte Orientale (FINO Consortium). His main research areas are analytical moral and political philosophy with a particular interest in methodological analysis and metaethics. His late research has focused on the normative relation between populism and political representation.