

Silvia Scarafoni is a first-year PhD Student in Legality, Political Cultures and Democracy at the University of Perugia. She graduated in Design of Social Policies (University of Perugia) and she holds a first-level Master's degree in Design and Management of Participatory Policies and Processes (University of Perugia) and a second-level master's program in Internal Areas. Rebirth after natural disaster: designing with communities (University of Camerino). She works as research assistant at Euricse for the 'Enterprising Communities' project and her research interests mainly focus on tools participation and active involvement of citizens, the relationship between local community and territory, and the development of inland areas. Among her main publications: Le imprese di comunità in Italia. Tratti distintivi e traiettorie di sviluppo, Euricse Research Reports n. 36, Trento, Euricse, 2024 (with J. Sforzi, A. Spalazzi, C. De Benedictis).